ARE YOU DEAD?
Find out in this easy-to-do quiz!

Script: John Soames

- Your mum tells you to get out of bed, as it's time for school. Do you:
 - Get up?
 - Get up, and have a hearty breakfast of human flesh?
 - Lie still in bed, allowing rigor mortis to set in?
- It's P.E. time at school, and you don't really feel like it. What do you do?
 - Battle on regardless
 - Show the teacher your decomposing body, and say that as your arm could drop off at any moment, you'd better not do P.E.
 - Lie still on the floor of the changing room, allowing rigor mortis to set in
- An old lady needs help crossing the street. What do you do?
 - Help her across, smiling as you do so
 - Help her across the street, but apologise for your body's decayed state, telling her it's due to being one of the Undead
 - Lie still in the street, allowing rigor mortis to set in
- How do you think your friends would respond if they were asked to describe you?
 - Alive, and cheerful with it
 - In an advanced state of decomposition, with a peculiar taste for human flesh
 - Dead, with rigor mortis setting in

HOW WELL DID YOU SCORE?

- IF YOU ANSWERED MAINLY A: You are alive, but you are also too goody-goody to be true.

- IF YOU ANSWERED MAINLY B: You are a Zombie. This means you are half-dead, and half-alive. Frankly, this sort of half-measure just won't do in today's world, so decide whether you want to be dead or alive, and do something positive about it soon.

- IF YOU ANSWERED MAINLY C: You are dead, with rigor mortis, and are probably beginning to smell pretty awful by now. If you haven't been buried yet, then GBH Funerals, Inc. have an excellent range of coffins.

PORTLAND PRATT

1. Portland Pratt was getting fed up with life in the lighthouse. 'You need a break,' said Dross and Crockerty, his pals.

2. So, Pratt rowed to the mainland and stayed in a comfortable hotel for two weeks.

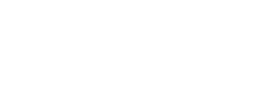

3. It was great fun. Pratt could get to sleep at nights without the sound of waves crashing against the walls.

4. When he returned to the lighthouse, he told Dross and Crockerty all about his hotel room. 'It was so quiet and dark at nights,' he said. 'Not like this place! Soon it was time for bed.'

5. In the morning, Pratt was awoken by shouts and screams. It was Dross and Crockerty. In the night five boats had crashed into the rocks.

6. Suddenly, Pratt remembered something. 'I was so used to being in my hotel room, I switched all the lights off last night!' he told Dross and Crockerty. 'Stupid moron,' they both said. Pratt did feel silly.

THE IRON SALMON

Danny and Penny Crain were overjoyed when their inventor Uncle built them an amazing mechanical fish. Now they could have lots of exciting underwater adventures!

"AND I CAN HAVE SOME FLIPPIN' PEACE TO FILL OUT ME POOLS COUPON!"

"PERSONALLY, I'D RATHER HAVE A BMX."

Happy as sandals, the boys took the Iron Salmon out for a trial run on the beach at Dullpool-On-Sea.

"HO! FLAMIN' KIDS!"

"CLEAR OFF-YER SMARMY LITTLE BRATS!!!"

Isn't it pretty?

Safely ensconced inside, Danny and Penny discovered the Iron Salmon into the depths of the ocean.

Oh dear! The 'sea monster' is only a whale - and the last of its species at that!

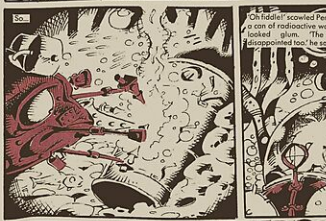

CRUMBS! SORRY! GREENDEA

With a cheerful wave to the people on the Green peninsula, Danny and Penny sped away across the ocean.

YOU LITTLE ONES!

Driving into the water depths, Danny and Penny beheld a peculiar sight. Golly! It must be a giant tin of taffy or something, exclaimed Penny. Let's come it up, said Danny.

When the Iron Salmon surfaced again, the sea looked strangely black and gooey. 'How yucky' said the boys together.

Oh dear. In fact, the black gooey stuff was an oil slick. 'Aaaaaaah!' screamed Danny. 'Aaaaaaah!' screamed Penny.

The sea must be dirty, said Penny. Yes. Let's clean it with our multi-purpose ray blaster!

CLICK!

My word! said the fisherman as Danny peer. Looks like Smoked Salmon for tea - and with plenty of nutritional iron in too! he chuckled.

OINK!

AS READ IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS!

Back in the July issue of Oink! I printed an article entitled '10 Things You Should Know About The New Poll Tax'. Thanks to the efforts of William Pickering (Oink! reader) and his pal Jeff Rooker (MP for Birmingham, Perry Barr) this piece of porky political punditry was given an airing in the House of Commons during the Poll Tax debate. So now read on for Oink! in parliament...
— Uncle Pigg

(from the pages of Hansard)

Mr. Rooker:

Even the children begin to think that something wrong is happening in the House of Commons. Believe it or not, some of our comics have referred to the poll tax. I freely admit that I am not a parent and am not an up-to-date on what he had read in his comic "Oink!" about the poll tax. (Interruption.) Yes, there is a comic called "Oink!". William asked me a few questions. He said, "There is a page in the July issue, Jeff, on 'Ten Things You Should Know about the New Poll Tax'." "Time under the guillotine does not permit me to read out all 10, but I promised William that I would raise a few with the Minister:

- 1 Everyone who owns a parent has to pay Poll Tax.
 - 2 If it asks, you pay double the basic rate.
 - 3 If it says rude words, you pay triple the basic rate.
 - 4 If it says rude words about the Labour Party you get a full rebate and I cut of milk.
 - 5 People who are members of the Conservative Party don't pay poll tax, no matter how many parents they have.
- I shall not take up the time of the House with the other five points, but at the end of the 10 things that young children should know about the poll tax it says:
- "A government spokesman explained that the new tax is necessary as the old domestic rating system which it will replace is both illogical and unfair. When we suggested that the tax seemed to favour the well-off, he replied that nothing could be further from the truth and told us not to give the game away."

A cartoon illustration of a boy being crushed by a giant, smiling, orange, spherical robot. The boy is screaming "AAGH!! NO! A NIGHTMARE!" while the robot says "GET IN THERE, SPOTTY!" and "WELL BEAT YOU!". The robot is a large, orange, spherical figure with a smiling face, wearing a small hat and a bow tie. It is standing on a platform and crushing the boy. The boy is lying on the ground, looking up at the robot with a terrified expression. There are other children in the background, some looking on in shock and others running away. The scene is set in a school hallway with lockers and a door visible.
